

Press Release

Titan Aviation is now Cayman Civil Aviation approved CAMO Unit

Titan Aviation, an aviation industry services provider based in Dubai with operations worldwide has been approved by Cayman Civil Aviation Authority as a Continuous Airworthiness Maintenance Organization (CAMO) unit as per Overseas Territories Aviation Requirements (OTAR) Part 39.

This approval enables Titan Aviation to monitor and maintain the aircraft flown under Cayman Islands registry. Titan Aviation operates a fleet of Cayman Islands registered aircraft on behalf of the owners which are based in the Middle East and India.

On being awarded the approval, Mr. Javed Ahmed, Technical Coordinator and Airworthiness Manager of the company pointed out that approval to function as a CAMO unit enables Titan Aviation to satisfy the regulatory requirements and in addition it also ensures safe and reliable operations for the owners. "This is crucial for us since we are very keen to ensure that our aircraft owners are always protected and fly in aircraft that are maintained to the highest standards of safety; so this approval is an additional value added service offer from us to our valuable clients".

"We thank the Cayman Civil Aviation Authorities for establishing regulations that supports private aircraft operations and with our experience of dealing with them since last few years we can say that the officials are certainly knowledgeable and are very interactive and communicative, which makes the operations continue uninterrupted".

Titan Aviation has inducted competent and knowledgeable team members into the Maintenance and Planning department to ensure strict adherence to the regulations. The company also expects to offer this service to more aircraft owners in the Region and is already in talks to induct a Lineage 1000, Gulfstream 200 and Legacy 600 into the managed fleet to be registered under Cayman Civil Aviation Authority.

The company is also in the process of securing OTAR 125 approval from the Cayman Civil Aviation Authority to undertake complete flight operations supervision of its managed fleet of aircraft.

Titan Aviation is an aviation services provider established in 2004 with global presence, specialising in all divisions of the industry - General, Corporate and Commercial Aviation; the core activities of the company are Aircraft Sales and Lease, Aviation Human Resources, Aircraft Charter, Aircraft Management and Aviation Consultancy.

The company is built on strong business ethics of Trust, Value and Quality service with transparent business practices.
